Call of Duty Black Ops 2 was developed by Sledgehammer Games and was released on the Xbox 360 and PC in the US on November 13, 2010. If you are a fan of FPS games then you should try this game. The trade of multiple, interconnected war zones is an interesting turn, and indeed there is one section of zombie story that is explicitly called out as such, but the core concept of a linear war story has been replaced with a closed one, in the most spectacular way possible. Oct 04, 2011 · I buy almost every year Black Ops, if you have the chance, have a look at the Zombies maps. Based on a realistic military situation, the campaign is an intense experience where story, great graphics and well-written dialogues come together for a truly epic experience. Read the disclaimer section for more information.I've always had a soft spot for numbers. I don't count my blessings all that often, but every so often I will look over my daily, weekly, monthly, yearly or some other list and give some kind of thought to how I'm doing. That is not something I do for myself all the time, but at the height of stress I'll pull out my spreadsheet and look over the data as the intensity of it all sinks in. If I was a gambler, I'd have no problem admitting to doing this. For the most part, the numbers make me feel good. I'm not a financial wizard, but I can play the numbers. But if I were to look at my social media stats, I would have a hard time seeing anything in the numbers. The theory of "if you get enough eyeballs on your stuff, it will get to the masses" makes sense to me. The bigger the audience, the bigger the chink in the armor, as they say. But I'm not sure how many clicks really equate to whether the message is getting to the masses. People are always saying you don't have to "do things online to get people to watch your videos or see your blog." Well, they are not actually "seeing" the blog. Yet. I would actually like that. I'd like for the audience to see it. Then I could take some time to break it down and talk about it, which I think is something I've never done on that site. If you check my blog, you'll find that I talk a lot about different things in the comment section. But because I'm so busy (and seemingly to many people, a jerk), the conversations tend to be short and sparse. I like that. It's not interesting to many people because most people want a show. People want depth, but they really don't want to actually think. They want to be entertained. So, is that what leads people to my site? Is the length of time that most people look at it, the reason why they like or
