need help please/ if you can help email me at kitlicon.support@me im having issues with my bios my radeon 7500 is working but my card is down when im in bios i have a 64mb graphics memory card and my graphics card is working but when im in bios it says not available i have a radeon 7500 in it. I need some help with my new HP Envy aa123AA on Windows 7. Intel Graphics Media Accelerator X3100 Integrated Graphics Controller: Detected 3D controller: Intel® HD Graphics 3000 displays driver: Geforce® I have a 60Hz Desktop monitor and 15.6" HP Envy aa123AA. I have it hooked up to a 15.6" HP Envy aa123AA using an HDMI adapter. The issue I am having is with my Desktop monitor. I can't get it to display correctly at 60Hz. I have this same issue with Windows 7 Ultimate 64-Bit. It won't display with the correct refresh rate and keeps setting to 30Hz. I've been trying to correct this by using the command in Display Preferences, but no luck. Display Settings: Windows Display Preferences: All Settings: Advanced: Other settings: Under Display, the selected refresh rate is set to 60Hz, which is the actual refresh rate of my monitor. But, the monitor is actually displaying at 30Hz. Is this a known issue or have I missed something? Hello, I am new to this site and I'm looking for help with my video card and monitor. I have a laptop with an Intel® Core® 2 Duo processor, and I want to upgrade to Windows® 7 Ultimate 64-bit (which I already have installed). My video card is a Geforce® GTX® 460, and I want to display it properly, not only on my laptop but on my monitor as well. So I tried to display it on my monitor but the same thing happens, it's setting the refresh rate of the monitor to 30Hz instead of the 60Hz I set on the desktop. Can somebody help me please? Thanks! You will find all the necessary drivers for your Clevo notebooks and other offered devices in one place. 3H-7-nitrobenzofurazan (NBD)-labelled ouabain binds to purified glycolipids. The binding of 3H-7-nitrobenzofurazan (NBD)-labelled ouabain to crude extracts from rat liver was found to be specific, saturable and reversible. Scatchard analysis revealed one population of binding sites with a K_d of 4×10^{-9} mol/l (apparent mean \pm S.E.M., $N = 7$). On thin layer chromatography 3H-7-NBD-labelled ouabain was bound to a major glycolipid which also was labelled with 3H-7-NBD-galactose, and a minor glycolipid which was bound to both 3H-7-NBD-galactose and 3H-7-NBD-glucosamine. Some TLC-autoradiograms of crude extracts of rat liver bound specifically 3H-7-NBD-labelled ouabain and glucocerebrosidase activity showed co-localization. These findings are consistent with the view that a single kind of glycolipid binds ouabain and glucocerebrosidase. I'll take a yes for an answer if you're talking about other western nations and not just the United States. Maybe I'm brainwashed, but I think Canada is a pretty special place. I also like the fact that we won't even have to deal with a US-Canada Super Bowl due to geographical separation. Not that it'll necessarily matter, we'll still probably pick up the same shitty product as we usually do. But I mean, if the United States and Canada can come to an agreement on something, perhaps it'll be the time to try a new approach with like-minded countries to get new ideas, rather than just conforming to global trends that could be changing. Dazza! I'll take a yes for an answer if you're talking about other western nations and not just the United States. Maybe I'm brainwashed, but I think Canada is a pretty special place. I also like the fact that we won't even have to deal with a US-Canada Super Bowl due to geographical separation. 3e33713323
