Mozilla is introducing a new JavaScript API to increase the security of the web and make the browser more stable. Like XPCOM, this API is being used behind the scenes in Firefox to allow us to extend the code beyond the browser. For example, Firefox 3.6 adds the ability to export and read data from the Firefox profile folder. As another example, Firefox 3.6 adds an XPCOM-based network security profile used to A tool that makes it easy to send big files - faster than HTTP or FTP and with more privacy and better support than email. FileMail is an easy-to-use, powerful Web-based e-mail system that uses the Web to send big files. How it works: FileMail functions like an e-mail program in your Web browser. In addition to the regular e-mail features, you can drag and drop files to be sent. Files can be sent using one of the following methods: * Drag and drop. Files can be dragged from your computer's desktop to the FileMail window and then dropped onto the Compose link. * Pasting. You can paste the URL of a file you want to send in the "Message" field. * Drag and drop and paste. You can drag a file from your desktop to the FileMail window, then paste the URL of it into the "Message" field. * Drag and drop from the address bar. You can drag a file from the address bar to the FileMail window (anywhere except to the Compose link) and then paste the URL of the file. * Drag and drop from web links. Files can be dragged from a web link to the FileMail window. * Drag and drop from a browser action. FileMail has a "Send a File" button available for many applications on your computer. Clicking the button sends the file you

Check out the latest Bot Framework update for .NET to build Bots in C#, Node.js, Python, and more. GETTING STARTED Introduction Welcome to the Bot Builder SDK for .NET! This is an introduction to the SDK and will show you how to use the APIs to create a bot with your code. If you would like to learn more about Bot Framework, please head over to Microsoft's Bot Framework website. In this article, we will 1) create a Web Chat bot which allows an end-user to select a desired emoji, and 2) integrate the selected emoji to the message using a Telegram bot. The Web Chat Bot API To create a chat bot, we need to do three major things. First, we need to setup the API With a new web operating system we can now continue the path between the web and the mobile world. When I started developing for web I remember that the first thing I wanted was to see the code of the application in a browser and I was able to do that very easily. Now with modern browsers like Chrome, Safari, Firefox, Opera I'm able to work with code right on the browser directly in its own tab. But besides all the features that the web browsers are offering, developers are also working hard to provide the power of the native application to the web. I'm no exception of course and by now we have a ton of tools that help us on the web to approach the complete desktop experience in a clean way. We have in-browser editors like Brackets, Visual Studio Code, WebStorm and Atom that can help us with our web coding. Then we have the web application like Visual Studio, Dreamweaver, Hugo etc. and you can now add web application on your favorite desktop application like IntelliJ IDEA, Eclipse and Sublime. Most of these are great tools to create quick web based apps but the problem with these native look-a-likes is that we don't get all the desktop features of the web. The 09e8f5149f

"This extension adds a snooze button to the address bar of your web browser, just like Chrome. For every tab that you open, click the button and it will open that tab after a few seconds. Get snoozed tabs for Firefox today and get back to your browsing." True Color Support Chromium-based extensions Activating the extension When you visit a website, you may notice a tiny button appearing next to the URL in the address bar. Click it, and you will open the corresponding tab in the Chrome browser a few seconds later. The button looks like this: To enable this extension, visit the Add-ons Manager, and tap the button in the extension's description to activate it. Configuration You can edit the preferences for the extension through the Profile Manager, as explained in the profile configuration section. Here are the details of the options: Profile Name When you visit a website, you will be asked to choose a profile name that will indicate which website is currently being visited. This prevents chrome tabs from closing automatically when opening a new tab for a different site. Default Profile This option indicates which profile is used by default whenever you open a new tab. ### What's New In?

Snooze Tabs is a smart browser extension part of Firefox Test Pilot, designed to help you avoid distractions, focus on work and remember important things by scheduling tabs to open at a later time when you're available. Screenshot of Snooze Tabs (February 26, 2018) Schedule tabs to reopen later in Firefox Wrap[ed] in a clean, modern-looking interface, the addon can be accessed from a small icon next to the address bar. Effects are only applied to the currently opened tab every time you perform an action. Tabs can be scheduled to reopen later on the current or next day, next weekend, next week or month, or the next time you launch Firefox. Each of these options has default times. Choose preset profiles, set the date and time, manage snoozed tabs "Later Today" is set to 3 hours from the current time. "Tomorrow" means the following day at 9 am, and "This Weekend" is represented by the nearest Saturday at 9 am. "Next Week" and "Next Month" mean exactly one week and one month in the future, both at 9 o'clock in the morning. However, it's possible to choose different dates and times after selecting any option. Once the decision is made, Snooze Tabs displays a message and asks for confirmation. It's necessary to confirm this or the event will not be taken into consideration. Afterward, the pin gets closed and reopened at the scheduled time (a message pops up in the lower-right corner of Firefox to draw your attention). Furthermore, you can go to the tab management area where, besides viewing and deleting any snoozed tabs, you can edit the scheduled times and dates, as well as skip the confirmation messages in order to schedule the events right away. Potentially great Firefox addon with plenty of room for improvements For the most part, Snooze Tabs worked well in our tests. But we've noticed that the current version has several glitches. For instance, when creating a new alarm, it's only possible to change the default time, not the time, although this option is visible. In some cases, this failed to produce the desired effect (the confirmation message wasn't shown and the event wasn't added to the manager). The issue was eventually resolved by restarting the web browser. When trying to edit the scheduled date and time, the clock disappeared sometimes. Also, in
