Dance of the Winds, Japan Dance of the Winds, Japan is a dance/theater show. In it, jazz, classical, and folk dancers perform jazz dance routines set to music which include pop songs, jazz, and folk tunes. History and background Dance of the Winds, Japan was established in 1957 by the Akiko Takamine Dance Company under the name Dance of the Wind and Rain. The company was one of the early pioneers of the use of folk and traditional dance in Japan. She created Dance of the Winds, Japan as an independent production company in 1962 as an offshoot of Akiko Takamine and Co. (1973) and moved into a new building in Yoyogi Park in Tokyo. The company has continued to be active since its founding. The company typically has three shows a year: a summer production in late June, a fall show in September, and a Christmas show in December. The company was formerly based in the Akiko Takamine House, a memorial to Takamine. In 2008 it moved to a new building in Yoyogi Park, Tokyo.
