AcceptThe present invention relates to a method for treating water which contains more than 0.5 ppm nitrogen and/or more than 0.5 ppm phosphorous in the form of ammonia and/or phosphoric acid ions. It is common practice to add in the water which is to be treated by means of a treating apparatus which is used in a household or plant, an aqueous solution of phosphoric acid (H₃PO₄) and/or of ammonia (NH₃) in order to reduce the microorganisms which are present in the water. By adding a specific quantity of ammonium phosphate to the water, it is possible to ensure that there is a microorganism reduction. This reduction is generally done in order to ensure that there is no bacterial growth in the water, so that this water can be fed directly to a washing machine or a boiler in which the microorganisms and/or microorganisms which are formed on the materials are neutralized, i.e. the water is not re-contaminated by these microorganisms. Nitrogen in the form of ammonium ions (NH_4^+) or in the form of ammonium phosphate ($\text{NH}_4\text{H}_2\text{PO}_4$) is generally added in order to destroy the microorganisms 77a5ca646e

Q: How to rotate a Sprite in XNA 4.0? I'm trying to rotate a sprite in my XNA game. I understand that `SpriteBatch.Begin(SpriteSortMode.FrontToBack);` is supposed to rotate the sprite based on its X/Y coordinates, but I'm not sure how to get the Y coordinates from a sprite on-screen. The game engine used doesn't seem to return the value. I also tried using `GraphicsDevice.RenderTargets[0].Translate;` but it seemed to just rotate the whole scene. Any help would be appreciated.

A: You can just store the y coordinates of the sprites, and after each frame, calculate the rotation angle from the x and y coordinates, and call `SpriteBatch.Begin(SpriteSortMode.BackToFront).`

Hello, welcome to my website. This is the personal blog of Siddhartha Nagaraj, an aspiring game developer. There are a few games I have been working on, but I am always interested to hear feedback and suggestions. I am also constantly looking for new inspiration to help me improve as a game developer. If you like the games, I would appreciate it if you would support the project by either buying the game or becoming a patron. Your support will be very much appreciated.
