DBScripter Description: Drone images show Old Bay area including Wawa A UAV photo of the Old Bay area taken around the start of the year. (Contributed) Old Bay area includes Wawa One-third of New Jersey's total natural resources – including drinking water – are located in the Old Bay area. (NJ Department of Environmental Protection) UAV images show the Old Bay area including Wawa. It's the Old Bay area. That's the area from Hopatcong to Mantua and also the part that includes Wawa. That's the area from Hopatcong to Mantua and also the part that includes Wawa. The area includes Milltown, Bayville, Seaford, Long Beach Island and Mantua. And one of the places with one of the most photographed beaches in the state is Milltown. Today's photo was taken around the start of the year by a drone that was part of a research project conducted by the Rutgers Cooperative Extension Service, New Jersey Department of Environmental Protection, and the NJ Water Supply and Coordinating Council. The researchers took UAV (Unmanned Aerial Vehicle) and GIS (Geographic Information Systems) technologies and mapped the state's drinking water resources. While the project is ongoing, the UAV was last used on May 24, 2017, to take photos of the Piles Creek area, Upper Deerfield Township, Morris County. Another set of aerial photos showing Wawa and the Old Bay area was taken from an aircraft by NJDEP on July 20, 2017. (Submitted photo) NJDEP doesn't know how the UAV flew, but they don't comment on the records they keep of the flights. No word yet as to how the researchers plan to use their data. The image taken today and the one from July 20, 2017, show the outlines of what are some of the most photographed parts of New Jersey's coast, along with a portion of the Old Bay
