Q: Creating a list of files in a folder from a list of their names? I have a directory of specific files that I want to process. The problem is each file will be numbered per starting number. For instance: Folder: 001 File: 001_A_001.txt Folder: 001 File: 001_A_002.txt Folder: 002 File: 002_A_001.txt Folder: 002 File: 002_A_002.txt . . . In this case, the final list will be: List of files: A_001.txt A_002.txt So the idea is to get a list of all files in the given folder and then cut and paste the portion of the file name which is to be used as the file name when processing the file. I only want to get the file names, and I need to differentiate which file name is going into which folder. A: Something like this? `string[] folderPath = Directory.GetFiles("D:\\test\\", "*.txt", SearchOption.TopDirectoryOnly); string[] fileNameList = File.GetAllFiles(folderPath); foreach(string fileName in fileNameList) { Console.WriteLine(Path.GetFileName(fileName)); }` Q: Silverlight - Making custom control editable I have a custom control where I need to make it a bit more customisable. I need to be able to enter a value on the front end (e.g. as a string) which when the user clicks a button, it should enter that value on the line in the code behind. I have looked at Blend and Expression Blend and I can set up a custom control this way, but is it possible
