Billionaire investor Carl Icahn on Friday said Massachusetts Sen. Elizabeth Warren bears some of the "blame" for Wall Street Goldman Sachs' rebuke of Rep. Maxine Waters' call for the bank's prosecution. Continue Reading Below
"Elizabeth Warren has a lot to answer for with that. I mean it's her fault," Icahn told CNBC's "Squawk Box Europe" on Friday morning, adding that her stance on regulation is "colder than January in Minnesota."
Goldman's rejection of Waters' call for prosecution is only one part of the bank's problems with Democrats. The company also faced blowback for its banking branch in the Florida district

Lights On/Lights Off - Doomsday Clock Before the Gravity One shoot, through much discussion, thought, and even moments of apprehension, I eventually worked things out into a masterpiece. We shot the video on the West Cliff of Mt. Rainer near the Space Needle and Seattle Center. The blackness was a result of the rain and time of day. The lighting was key to making sure it was believable and at the same time having the moon bedeck the sky. With prop stylist Shaun O'Brien and a Seattle Seahawk (I'll note that because he's in the artist credits that he should have been credited with it being his work and that has already been corrected), we set up to shoot this video. I came from my native Geography/Conservation Science background, so this was the first time working outside of a lab, or even in Seattle if that's more on the lab side. This shoot took from the entrance of the Space Needle at 10 am to 1 pm. We got the permit late, so
