This is a Live Stream of a Twitch Play with Live Chat. I will stream often as I get these games back with the Twitch Play/Transformation. File uploaded and made available as an academic forum submission. The recent announcement of ANZAC Day has reminded all of us of the many fantastic stories about the First World War and the great efforts of the service men and women at the time. The stories and struggles they endured and the tales of survival and bravery throughout the Great War have played an important role in the development of human civilisation. As such, we have chosen to dedicate this documentary to the role of the veterinary corps. As a group, they had a crucial role to play, as the men at the frontlines were too busy for this role. Their expertise in recognizing sickness, ailments, and injuries meant they were amongst the first at the frontlines. They also provided vital help when the men at the front were injured or sick. The documentary will cover the work of this corps during the war, as well as a brief look at the important role played by the veterinary corps in the years leading up to the war. It also looks at the work they continue to play today, in the modern era. The first part of the documentary looks at how the veterinary corps, as well as the veterinarians of the time, faced a major challenge with the development and provision of vaccines. Not only did they have to discover new vaccines, but it was also vital to ensure that the vaccines were effective and properly stored. The second part of the documentary will deal with the role of the veterinary corps during the war, as well as some of their stories and techniques that helped keep their troops healthy, free from illness and injury, and in good spirits. In the modern day, the role of the veterinary corps continues to develop and be crucial to the future of the medical field. In the early days of the First World War, veterinarians not only had to figure out how to help the men at the front, but also how to ensure the overall health and wellbeing of their communities. For the first time in human history, we would look towards veterinary professionals to help provide care and medication to our fellow citizens. Before we go into this, one of the main questions that often comes up when this subject is brought up is ‘

The United States and Europe have just begun to grasp the full extent of a new wave of online crime: the cyber-kidnap of thousands of computers and then the extortion of the thousands of would-be hackers who were stalking them. The victims of these evildoers -- known as "zombimappers" in the underworld -- are ordinary people who, sometimes in the throes of woe or the grip of debt, are persuaded to exchange bits of personal information by a scruffy-looking young man who will make his pitch for their business data. In other cases the attackers' hostility has taken on a more direct form: the hijacking of innocent individuals' Web spaces and the attack of computers run by companies in the United States, Britain and the Netherlands in which they live. This new wave of crime has come into view this week after a year-and-a-half ago a gang of four South Korean hackers called the Pentagon Online fell upon America Online, where they ransacked the company's backup servers and then defaced the site. It's not a pretty story. First come the men on a black Beamer-delivered van -- then the muffled footfalls of two other men accompanying them. Then the door slams and the boys are gone with their monitor and their hard disk. Into the network they go. Whether they plan to deface the site or profit from stolen mail, credit card numbers, even identity theft remains opaque. In 2002, the hacker known as Pawnstorm defaced several sites for a week before revealing who he was, after at least $22,000 in cash had paid for his expenses. Over the past eight months, the four members of the Pentagon Online have defaced more than 40 sites in the United States, adding to their tally of approximately 40 victims. As part of their move to extort more than $1 million, they have published countless commercial spyware products called browser hijackers that can track a person's surf habits and steal personal information. Often, the malware is used to distribute cryptolocker, a form of ransomware payable in digital currency. The cloaking feature of the malware means that neither the victim nor site administrators will know the extent of the damage. Two of the Pentagon hackers, one of whom goes by "The super UFO fighter" is basically a space sport where you battle each other in 1 vs 1 duels on 3 different stages. You fly against other players, the difficulty of your opponents will increase. There are 10 enemy pilots in every stage. And each stage has 3 UFO pilots, as well as 3 different obstacles on the field. Each pilot will gain recognition and awards based on your performance in battles. ♦Playing and winning♦ Your goal is to control the target items and shoot your opponent to win the battle. Stage items to gain points are placed on the field, and you will be able to take and shoot the items in your path. You can use your swoop beam to take the items, or throw a swoop attack to throw, or throw and shoot. Any shot can take a shot, so you are not limited to just certain types of shots. The key to winning the battle is to accumulate as many items as possible and keep shooting your opponent. That's why you can change your path to a different stage and target any target item for points, even if you lose a battle. So you can hit the target item in the way of your opponent, and take the prize.

◆Tutorial◆ In the tutorial, your mission is to defeat 3 stages each containing 3 Pilots. To start off, you are the only one who can choose the first stage. But you should feel like the first thing you want to know is "how do I start a battle?" -Once you have started a battle, you will be able to choose the stage you want to start off on. -And when it comes to choosing the item to take, you can change your path so that you can take the items. -During a battle, you can stop to absorb the effects of items taken, and use them to your advantage. Learn to play as you go along with the tutorial, as you progress you will be able to select a level. ◆The Shwoopers!◆ The most recent trend of the Earth Shwooping bout is to battle with the space Shwoopers called "Shwoopers". You can compete with each other in 1v1, 2v2, and 3v3 duels. To start a duel, you and your friend will enter the battlefield. At the beginning of the fight, you'll be able to
