

A file uploader that helps you upload files and folders to your OneDrive account without using Microsoft's file-sharing application. It saves you the trouble of keeping OneDrive installed on your computer and working in the background, and gets integrated into the context menu to let you quickly and easily upload files selected in the Windows explorer. It lets you choose the OneDrive destination folder and overwrite any files with the same name. Microsoft's new password assistance/reset application, OneChange is being rolled out to the public, much like the original Microsoft Passport which was released several years ago. OneChange promises the ability to reset all account-specific passwords for Microsoft services, with no need to create a new account or prove your identity. The reset/attempt will be timed to match the time you opted to reset and not the time of the event prompting for a password change. The app does not use any information not already known to Microsoft such as Social Security Number or any other personal information to validate identity. If your new password fails, OneChange will give you a list of reasons why it failed and a link to a Microsoft support article about how to solve that problem and set a new password. You can also reset the password for personal accounts on a work laptop using Microsoft's OneDrive, OneDrive for Business and Skype for Business. Additional information on this can be found in the OneChange help section. Microsoft doesn't plan to make this available to regular personal accounts any time soon. OneChange is a Microsoft product that is currently being rolled out in phases to qualifying users. In a current state of beta, we received notification that the application is now available to all users. It is still a work in progress, but it seems to be very capable at this stage. OneChange - The OneChange beta requires an invitation to download. This process will be gradually released to the general public as it is finalized. Resetting Microsoft Accounts Microsoft Account - If you have a Microsoft Account, you will need to use the Microsoft Account and sign into your Microsoft Account to reset the password. You can reset the password via the account management page Work or school email account - Your work or school email addresses can be used as a Microsoft account if you are one of the following: A Microsoft Group Manager.
