Scripts Connect multiple servers to a single HUB The following are modifications to the original HUBFlow Classic installation. These were obtained from the following document: (a) The HUBFlow-Classic server now supports floating the ZoneAdministration printer. This is achieved by renaming the printer. This was necessary because the original HUBFlow-Classic installation was developed using a named printer, while the HUBFlow Classic Server installation is done in such a way that a separate printer in used. (b) The printer-name property of the ZoneAdministration has been removed and the server to that property has been changed to the "HUBFlow Classic Server". The original printer-name property is now read-only (c) In addition, the serial-number property has been removed. This is because the serial number was not really used. (a) The HUBFlow-Classic server has been added as a Network printer, and as such, the print job definition (which for purposes of the original HUBFlow-Classic installation was the only type of print job definition supported) has been changed from HUBFlow Classic Client to HUBFlow-Classic Server. The original HUBFlow-Classic installation did not support a separate printer-server relationship, and therefore did not really need the HUBFlow-Classic server. (b) All of the printer properties have been changed to reflect the new relationship between the HUBFlow-Classic server and the ZoneAdministration. The following are changes to the original HUBFlow Classic installation that are not included in the Version-2.57. These were obtained from the following document: Modifications include: (a) The HUBFlow-Classic server now supports floating the ZoneAdministration printer. This is achieved by renaming the printer. (b) The serial number property has been removed and the serial number is not inserted into the document. Rslinx classic v2 windows 7 file v2 57 Contents 1. HR Discovery and Remote monitoring 2.
