Not Reviewed. : Supreme Ruler Ultimate, PC (Mac).27 September 2016 This "Giant" was first exhibited at the Riga Biennial in 2006 and then, in 2009, it premiered at the American Revolution Bicentennial Site in Philadelphia. This version of "Tulip Poet" will be shown to the public for the first time at the UCLA Hammer Museum during its upcoming exhibition of the same title. With a 30-minute video accompanying the Tulip, the Hammer hopes to introduce these uncommon yet striking works to a broad American audience. "Tulip Poet", the first installation created by Iwan Baan after receiving the Mies van der Rohe Award at the 2006 Riga Biennial, conveys the idea of an author who, outside of his or her professional life, changes time, space, or personal identity as a result of a creative act. The Tulip was originally a few sizes larger and the paint was applied not as a spray but as a drip, which gradually filled up the photograph and surrounded the tulip. It was then taken as a video to create a work that is “a lens through which the personal narrative takes over the spatial dimension” (Baan). This giant, in turn, is a portrayal of Baan himself in the role of the Tulip. By placing himself on a national biennial showcase in front of the Riga City Hall, Baan is transforming his professional life into a simultaneous transition from Riga to Philadelphia in August 2009, appearing in front of the American Revolution Bicentennial in Philadelphia as a giant tulip. His extraordinary actions in the process of producing the large-scale Tulip, which is both an illusionary space and an illusionary personal narrative, reflect the actual state of a hugely anticipated international exhibition that was to take place in Philadelphia. 07 September 2016 Photo Courtesy of Maureen O'Connor/ UCRAD, Main Image The fourth exhibition in the UCLA Hammer Museum's ongoing Pasadena Contemporary Art Series explores the work and
