Say you are heading to Mt. Elbrus, the highest peak in Russia, and you are planning to start your journey by the end of the month. Would you rather start off a trip by a pre-planned route or would you rather plan the route on a free trail? Do you want the convenience of others knowing exactly where you are heading to? Are you planning to make a short stopover in your trip? If all these questions are in your mind then you must be thinking about using free trail. Well, there is no better time than the present to travel with this ideal trail. ZMail is a travel companion application that will help you plan your short-free-trail trip. It will map all the roads you will use for your trip and display them on a map, so that you can easily choose the route and follow it on your way. The app does not only help you with this task but it can also serve as a navigation and direction assistant. It will provide you with every information you need to plan your route, from the weather forecast to the movie you might want to watch while in your free-time. The application allows you to know all the places, including
