Do you like casual games? Try this simple game: launch rockets and destroy bombs. To launch rockets, you need to spend the energy. If you run out, you lose. Bombs appear randomly on the playing field in a random place. You can launch rockets that destroy bombs when they explode. For each destroyed bomb you get 2 points. The difficulty is that launching one rocket costs one point. They fly to the target for a certain time, so you need to calculate the trajectory to the bombs and try not to miss. If you miss, the bomb explodes and you lose. If the number of bombs on the playing field reaches 20, you will immediately lose. Use your accuracy. How many points can you earn? What's new in Fabrication:

Among Whirlwinds of Steel Welcome! My name's Liana Hoffmayer, and I'm a tiny, furry little gnome that grew up in the very old lands of Shimmerstone. Now that I'm fifteen and entering the world of cooking and serving beverages to people, I am discovering that I take far too much pleasure in poking and prodding the little things that live below the dirt, and I'm working diligently to learn how to make my ilk to help me on my quest for fame and fortune! Hello everyone - I'm a tall, slender dwarf with well over a dozen piercings and some fun fashion accessories. I want to start off by saying I'm not really even all that much into fashion (yet), so that might change! I'm in college at the moment, and will be attending the Art Institute of CA in a couple years. I'm really not done with art and my human major - I love to paint, do expression, sculpture, and creative writing. I've always been more into fantasy and science fiction than anything else, and now I am in the habit of reading almost all kinds of fiction (even some of the classics!). I'm currently mostly interested in giving original fiction a try, and I enjoy everything - that means Old West, Young West, Post-Apocalyptic, or whatever. I also really enjoy video games, but with little interests (they just take up time and money). I also enjoy tabletop games, though not so much wargames like Savage Worlds and Pathfinder. I also like to work with wire and jewelry, which is something I've been doing for about a decade. Basically, I want to explore as much as I can, and be as excited as I can - mostly focused on words, but also images, music, and other things. I'm looking forward to the adventure! ...In game, I play a dwarf (Strength) with a mining background (all underground type character). I work at a mine, as a miner, an explorer, or anything I have to, up until I can go out on open field by myself and strike it rich. Playstyle: I'm a throw down the dice type player. I roll a lot. I like to get into things quickly and really make people work to get what they want. I tend to be somewhat of a grumpy old man, with a bit of a deep belly belly laugh that just takes over the circle. Seriously... It's
