You might want to read the specifications of your application to make sure that it is indeed going to function properly on that device. For instance, if you plan on using your device as a video player, you'll probably want to check if it is supported. Nvidia has open-sourced the CUDA programming model, a set of programming tools, libraries, and sample code that is optimized for programming CUDA. Ristolpen or Retsellen (; Ristolpen or Stretolen) is a mountain massif in the province of Granada, in Andalusia, Spain. Geology Ristolpen is a granite rock formed about 500 million years ago. It has a crystalline massif, with strato-volcanic origins and is tectonically stable and eroded. It has been designated as a Natura 2000 area. Geography Ristolpen is situated over the Segre River gorge in the Serranía de Ristolpe, a mountain range in the Guadalquivir valley at the foot of the Sierra Nevada. It was formed by the Picos de Europa mountains, the remains of a range that was split from the Granada mountains during the Tertiary period. The Ristolpe is connected to the Serratin by a tunnel. The highest elevation of the massif is 1,529 metres high Picos del Ristolpe, 726 metres high Torre de Oveja, and 728 metres high Picos del Ristolpe. The Ristolpe is part of the Corredor Transibericano, a long-distance path, with many access points, that runs through the mountains along the Ebro River, through the Iberian System, the Pyrenees, the Alps and the Mediterranean Sea. Tourism Ristolpen has many gorges and waterfalls where it is possible to go swimming, walking and climbing. The gorges at Alcaid and Valdivieso are famous for their aquatic fauna. It is in this area where the scientific world was a first to register the presence of the candiru fish. Its vast remains of fossils of dinosaurs, pterosaurs and stegosauruses are featured in the museum at Las Pinas. The National Park of the Retsellense natural area is in the mountains of Occ13bf012
