wondering if there is a way to revert asterisks to normal signs to avoid any confusion. I've translated all the English text, but need to translate the syntax/grammar too. For example, when we say I have a small room we are saying we have a small room inside my house, but if you say: I have a small room we'd assume you meant a small room inside another room, but the actual meaning is we have a small room. I assume that you can't just change the asterisks to normal signs, but instead, you have to translate the entire sentence that includes asterisks in the source code. A: You can use a Python regular expression: >>> import re >>> re.sub(r"(*)\s?", r"\$1", "I have a small room") "I have $
