Flatbed Scanning Flatbed scanning is often the first image editing step in assembling digital images because it's the easiest way to scan several images. It's also the only way to scan documents, although in most cases, if the document is less than 10x10 inches, it can be scanned at the default setting—upside down and on a flatbed scanner. A flatbed scanner has two parts: the actual scan bed and a control panel. Unlike the scanner in your home office, these scanners are usually extremely large and heavy—a lot of _girth_ and _weight_—and larger and heavier than your average office scanner. They are also very expensive (Figure 9-15). Figure 9-15 A large flatbed scanner. If you want to do some large-scale scanning, you should consider a flatbed scanner. If you have a friend who's looking for a great investment, take it with you to show it off. In most cases, if you have the capacity to scan a large number of images, it's time to consider a professional model.

Related: Photoshop vs Photoshop Elements Adobe Photoshop is the pinnacle of software design and has held the title of the number one graphics app on Apple's App Store for over a decade. But there's an open source alternative that you can use for free. What is Photoshop? Photoshop is an image editing software program created by Adobe Systems. Its primary function is to edit photos. It's one of the most popular applications in use today. The first version of Photoshop was released on May 2, 1990 as a 3.0 update to Corel Paint Shop Pro. Q: How to use a tab without a label I want to use tabs for navigation and not labels. I don't know how to do this. I can get a tab, but I don't know how to get the space that it takes up and how to center the contents of the tab horizontally. A: use Home Profile And then add the following CSS .tab-content{ padding: 10px 0px; } This will add a padding of 10px to the .tab-content div and will make the tab content go to the next line. I tried it and it works. I also added this so the links would look like buttons rather than just text. If you need it to appear like a tab, use a label with the class.nav-link. Hope that helps.
