The GIMP The GNU Image Manipulation Program (known more commonly as GIMP) is a free, cross-platform vector graphics editor that is more powerful than Photoshop or Illustrator but equally easy to use. GIMP is based on the W3C standard and is fully W3C certified, so it's compatible with the entire web, including intranets and the Internet. GIMP supports all the most popular image file formats, including the widely used JPEG, GIF, TIFF, PNG, and BMP, and it comes with a range of plugins, similar to the plugins available with Photoshop. GIMP is also very flexible and can be used for a range of other tasks, including photo retouching, image creation, organizing files, manipulating maps, and adding watermarks. The GIMP is more intuitive than Photoshop in some respects, and has a powerful file browser that allows you to easily select images and other files. The GIMP supports layers and has a number of useful tools, including a histogram, which shows you the tonal range and contrast in the image. The GIMP has many plugins similar to the plugins available in Photoshop and a strong Adobe-compatible file format. For more information, visit the GIMP website at www.gimp.org.

BRATISLAVA (Reuters) - An explosion ripped through a local supermarket in the northeastern Slovakian town of Banskobystrany on Monday, injuring at least six people, two of them seriously. A local man told Reuters he saw a flash of light and then heard a big explosion. "One of the injured is quite bad. He is not moving... but many have superficial wounds," he said. "I was asleep and I just woke up, I was surprised," said the 26-year-old man, who did not want to be named. The interior ministry said one person was in a critical condition. The cause of the blast in the village, some 130 kilometers (81 miles) north of the capital Bratislava, was not immediately clear. "Our emergency services have assessed that there was an explosive device on the market floor. Preliminary data indicate that it was a homemade device," Slovak security service SIS said in a statement. The ministry said some shops in the building were damaged by the explosion and there were no casualties at the train station. There was no immediate claim of responsibility.

Q: System.Runtime.InteropServices.COMException when loading a dll I'm getting the following error: System.Runtime.InteropServices.COMException (0x80020002): Retrieving the COM class factory for component with CLSID {0431CF8B-9844-4675-9E34-0C2A0D42AE71} failed due to the following error: 80020002. When loading a dll and triggering the error. I am loading the dll using Reflection and the dll is installed and correctly registered with regsvr32. I googled this and did not find a solution. Any ideas why it is erroring out? A: I finally found the solution. I was calling the GetClassObject method directly after calling the GetType, which caused it to error because the .NET framework did not have registered the dll. Changing it to be (and checking if needed): Type.GetTypeFromProgID(Module.ProgID); fixed it.
