Future Prospects

{#sec4-molecules-23-01375} ===== *.*This review is an effort to summarize some of the work done on the I³/I⁻⁻ organic reactions in recent years and to pinpoint some of the issues that still need to be addressed by the scientific community. The important progresses made will be highlighted and will be used to predict possible future trends in this important chemical class. 4.1. Advances in the I³/I⁻⁻ Reactions {#sec4dot1-molecules-23-01375} ----- Figure 6{ref-type="fig"} shows the I³/I⁻⁻ reactions that have been reported in the last three years. The figure is based on the literature published in the last three years. In this timeframe, there have been several new and exciting results. The most noted ones are as follows: The first report of a very clean and efficient reaction of an alkyl iodide with N-naphthoyl-amino acids in the presence of CuI in THF to obtain the corresponding thioamide \[@B20-molecules-23-01375]. The discovery of an I²/I³ generated species that, in the presence of a suitable ligand (PPh³ or PPh³-based), is able to generate the formation of the 1,2-dihydrobenzo[d]imidazole-3-thione (F) \[@B21-molecules-23-01375] and a benzimidazoly

The blood and the

The authors conclude that in patients with acute viral hepatitis the evidence for the presence of HAV, HBV or HCV infection was positive in 94%, 42% and 43%, respectively. The data confirmed the usefulness of recombinant immunoblotting for the laboratory

MONDAY How does living Monday make my life better? I love this because I love
how Monday is completely done
with the week and gives me a chance
to rest and relax.
Also I love that my week doesn't start with a lot of stress

and tension because I know that I'm only dealing with
Monday. Life
Lesson: When facing
the next day, what is the best thing to do? I think this is a question I ask myself frequently
during the week.
Every morning I'll find myself
randomly thinking

“what should I do today?”. I think this is a pretty normal question in most people. However, in the situation I’m going through, it’s literally how I see my day. I’ll get these weird ideas in my head that I don’t like to admit that I’ve done. From crazy ideas, to too many things that I don't want to do. I actually worked as a professional trainer

for years in college and have probably over a million boss
ideas that
