In order to develop web-applications, you need a web server which is an API. Lately, I switched to the Express framework, which is a free node.js web server. Let's look at an example: `var express = require('express'), app = express(); app.get('/', function(req, res) { res.send('Hello World!'); }); app.listen(3000);` This code tells the web server that, when you visit the address "localhost:3000", it should respond with the content "Hello World!"--- abstract: 'We describe in detail several families of coprime morphisms of certain semifields and thus, by using extension-field theory, determine the corresponding lines of the associated hyperbolic quadric and its polarity and the corresponding plane and polar spaces. These results are discussed with respect to the main properties of the families. In particular, we show that this gives a description of the entire set of lines of the associated hyperbolic quadric and c6a93da74d
